EDITORIAL NOTES AND NEWS

Since the appearance in the March issue of THE CONDOR of the list of Cooper Club members who have entered into military service, we have been advised of the following names to be added to this roster:

Ernest M. Anderson, Esquimalt, British Columbia, Canada.

Dr. Thomas D. Burleigh, Y. M. C. A. Army and Navy Ass'n., in France.

Maunsell S. Crosby, Captain, Camp A. L. Mills, New York.

F. B. Eastman, Major, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

P. H. Gosse, Captain, 22d Army, British Expeditionary Force, in France.

P. J. Hartman, Engineers, American Expeditionary Force, in France.

Miss Heloise Meyer, Red Cross, in France.

Walton I. Mitchell, Captain, Camp Funston, Kansas.

Carl S. Mueller.

J. Howard Richey.

Oscar F. Schaefer, Engineers (Forest), in France.

H. L. Stoddard.

Casey A. Wood, Major, Office Surg. Gen., Washington, D. C.

Howard Wright, Navy.

Word comes that Major (now Colonel, B. E. F.) Allan Brooks found time and opportunity the past winter to make some bird drawings. These appealed to the British public to the extent that several sold for ten pounds and upwards, the proceeds going to the Red Cross. We are glad of the assurance that Brooks's brush has lost none of its talent.

During the latter part of March, a party of California naturalists paid a flying visit to several of the Santa Barbara group of Islands, with results ornithological that will be reported upon in the next issue of THE CONDOR. The new Fish and Game Commission's launch "Albacore" provided a comfortable and rapid means of transit. Cooper Club men who participated in the outing were Messrs. Evermann, Law, Mailliard, and Van Denburgh.

The annual Cooper Club Business Manager's report, for the year ending January 1, 1918, as drawn up by Messrs. Chambers and Law, has been filed with each of the two Divisions of the Club. The outstanding feature of the report is the increased cost of printing, and this has necessitated a notable reduction in the size of the annual volume of THE CONDOR. At the same time, in spite of extraordinary financial conditions, there has been an increase in subscribers to THE CONDOR as well as in Cooper Club membership, a very healthy state of affairs which we can in all fairness credit only to the energetic efforts of our always loyal officers.

We are in receipt of an announcement of the organization of the Woodland Heights Museum of Analytical Oology, with headquarters at present in the home of Mr. Milton S. Ray, San Francisco. As indicated in the name chosen, the accumulation and study of birds' eggs is to engage the interests of those identified with the enterprise. Among the names listed in the directorate and membership are: Rose C. Ray, Captain Eugene A. Wiegand, John Deas, Milton S. Ray, Dr. Sterling Bunnell, William R. Ray, A. J. Campbell, Leverett M. Loomis, Henry W. Carriger, Chase Littlejohn, and Oluf J. Heinemann.

Mr. J. Grinnell is working on a second installment of his Bibliography of California Ornithology. Anyone with knowledge of titles previous to 1908 that were omitted from the Bibliography already published (Pacific Coast Avifauna No. 5) will confer a favor by informing him in regard to them.
